

In these unprecedented times, where the Coronavirus is impacting all aspects of our lives, ensuring the safety of our colleagues and customers remains our top priority. The following update offers insight to the precautionary measures we are taking.

As health concerns increase, Weichert Workforce Mobility and our on-the-ground partners are continuing to follow the guidance and safety standards set by the World Health Organization (WHO), the US Government, and local regulating bodies for all face-to-face interactions. Our primary goal is to protect you and your family and reduce the risks of transmission.

To ensure that our colleagues are well-equipped to serve you, we are working vigilantly to maintain a healthy work environment. In accordance with the Center for Disease Control's (CDC) guidelines, we have enacted our emergency response plan and are promoting social distancing through alternative work policies, including remote and alternative work arrangements. This has enabled us to remain fully operational and available to continue serving you.

While our goal is uninterrupted service, we appreciate your understanding that our approach to service may look and feel a little different during this period. Consequently, we are emphasizing open and constant communication as a means of navigating the challenges brought on by the virus. Your Counselor is available through all the customary channels – phone, email, and MyWIN - if you need help with any aspect of your service or simply want to discuss your unique situation.

In the meantime, I am confident that by working together, we can ensure the best outcomes, even in the most difficult times. On behalf of Weichert, I hope you, your loved ones and your community stay safe and healthy.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Dave Bencivengo", with a long horizontal line extending to the right.

Dave Bencivengo
President, Weichert Workforce Mobility